Summary OF THE War News

The resignation of Premier Venizelos and his cabinet has been accepted by King Constantine of Greece. Official advices to this effect were received in London today.

The Greek premier's resignation, which has further complicated the already decidedly uncertain Balkan situation, was because the King informed M. Venizelos that he could not pursue the cabinet's policy to the end, according to Athens advices. The premier had indicated that he favored strong support of Serbia in compliance with Greece's treaty obligations.

With definite development of the courses to be pursued by Bulgaria, Greece and Rumania still lacking, the landing of allied troops at Saloniki continues. Additional French forces disembarked there today supplementing the force of 70,000 already landed. It is reported from Athens.

Bulgaria has failed to reply to the Russian ultimatum. Petrograd advices state and it is assumed in entente quarters that her entry into the war on the side of the central powers is imminent.

Rumania is showing signs of activity, however, recently sending troops to the Bulgarian frontier and taking other military measures of an extraordinary nature. It is stated in news agency despatches from Greek sources.

It is declared in Athens despatches that a scene of wild disorder in the Greek chamber followed the announcement of the cabinet's resignation. Sitings of the chamber were suspended.

Only artillery fighting, with some hand grenade operations, is reported from the front in France. The French claim to have made some progress in connecting trenches in the Artois region.

The official statement of Oct. 5 contains the following:

"Russian troops are wearing German helmets in order to deceive German troops. It is evident that such Russians, when they fall into German hands, will be in accordance with the laws of war."

Official VIEWS OF

World's War GERMAN

Berlin, Oct. 5.—An attempt by the French to resume the offensive on the Champagne front by heavy artillery fire against the German positions was frustrated with heavy losses by the German artillery. It was announced by army headquarters today.

The official statement of Oct. 5 contains the following:

"The bombardment in which both sides have been taking part has continued in the Artois district. It was particularly severe to the south of the forest of Glenchey. We have made some progress with hand grenades in the connecting trenches to the southwest of the chateau of La Folie."

There has been reported from the remainder of the front nothing more than artillery fighting in which both sides took part, particularly in the Champagne district between the Meuse and the Moselle, to the north of Elberly and along the front at Tonnay in the vicinity of Leintrey, Gendexon and Domèvre."

FRENCH

Paris, Oct. 5.—In the Artois district the artillery exchanges have continued with particular violence in the vicinity of the forest of Glenchey, according to the French official statement given out at the war office this afternoon.

The text of the communication follows:

"The bombardment in which both sides have been taking part has continued in the Artois district. It was particularly severe to the south of the forest of Glenchey. We have made some progress with hand grenades in the connecting trenches to the southwest of the chateau of La Folie."

There has been reported from the remainder of the front nothing more than artillery fighting in which both sides took part, particularly in the Champagne district between the Meuse and the Moselle, to the north of Elberly and along the front at Tonnay in the vicinity of Leintrey, Gendexon and Domèvre."

Smith is a Bethel resident, who has been working in the city. Mrs. Smith conducts a theatrical agency in New York, but she has been spending the summer at Fairfield Beach.

Direct telegraphic communication with New Orleans was again cut off.

FIFTY YEARS IN SAME STORE, D. M. READ CO. HAS STRONGER STRUCTURE THAN EVER BEFORE

With Ancient Building on "Stilts," Contractors Remodel Exterior and Interior, Making It One of Most Modern in Connecticut—Thousands Shop While Changes Are Accomplished.

A few weeks ago The Farmer in its "Fifty Years Ago" column printed a news item which told of the breaking of ground for a new brick block on the northeast corner of Fairfield avenue and Main street. A few weeks ago The Farmer printed an item about the rebuilding of the structure occupied by the D. M. Read Co.

Strange to say the D. M. Read Co. began business in the new block which was erected by Richard Stanton 50 years ago, and has never closed its doors except on holidays and Sundays, but is today housed in modern brick building with steel and concrete foundations and supporting piers of each of its five floors of the same materials.

On the Fairfield avenue side of the building the brick walls were removed and replaced with plate glass. The change in the appearance of the exterior of the building is not as marvelous as was the method which has changed a half century old building into an up-to-date structure.

When the big store's management decided to revolutionize the establishment in all its branches it reached the conclusion that it could not go very far without a modern building, and it also decided that it could not close the store or any part of it while the work was being done.

The contract was given to a Bridgeport concern, The T. J. Parry Construction Co., and the actual work was done by two native Bridgeporters, Arthur Henry C. Southery and Superintendent of Construction Henry F. Greene, both products of Grand street public school, by the way.

In five months' time the huge building was raised on stilts, as it were. The old foundations were torn out and new ones installed.

While the place was filled with shop, steel girders, some weighing five tons apiece and weighing 90 tons in the aggregate were lowered noiselessly from the fourth floor into the basement and placed under the walls. All the old time party walls of brick and masonry on the various floors were removed.

In their place were substituted massive "T" beams supported by steel columns, which rest on a grillage of steel girders in solid concrete, and all resting on the big girders in the basement. Solid concrete floors were laid in the basement. Two steel and concrete staircases were built from the basement to the fifth floor.

Thirty thousand square feet of plate glass were added to the store front; 37,000 cubic feet of brick walls removed to admit fresh air and sunlight; and 1,000 cubic feet of outside wall were removed and replaced by steel and glass. Two fireproof elevator shafts were built from the basement to the roof and equipped with the largest cars in New England, each having a capacity of 30 passengers.

Not a single old floor beam was left in the building.

Before the rebuilding commenced the store had 45,000 square feet of floor space. Added were 38,000 square feet, giving the new store a total of 83,000 square feet of floor space.

All of the old ceilings were replaced with metal ceilings, and the same Bridgeport contractors who engineered the heavy and perilous stunt of juggling a brick building filled with humanity each day put on the trimmings which include the French doors and handsome paneling in the new tea and rest room.

The job was completed in five months and all concerned were glad when it was finished. If Architect Southery or Superintendent Greene will let you in on the trick of the thing which permitted the use of a huge derrick on the roof of the building while it stood on stilts, they will tell you that the brick walls were tied together with 1-2 inch steel rods, span to span, and that the rods were left in the walls making them stronger than ever.

GERMANY AGREES TO U.S. DEMANDS IN ARABIC CASE

Washington, Oct. 5.—Germany's disavowal of responsibility for the sinking of the Arabic, with accompanying assurances that the possibility of the case will be taken up by the German government through stringent instructions to submarine commanders was regarded by officials of the Washington government today as one of the most gratifying results secured by American diplomacy since the European war began.

Optimism over the outlook for complete settlement was even more pronounced in German quarters here. It was pointed out that Ambassador Von Bernstorff had full authority from his government to act for it in the negotiations and that his determination for an amicable adjustment had been amply demonstrated by the wide concessions made in the case of the Arabic.

All that now remains to the Arabic case, it is pointed out, is the fixing of the amount of indemnity. That phase of the case will be taken up orally at a conference at a date yet to be determined between Secretary Lansing and the German ambassador.

The next feature of the issue to be taken up will be the Lusitania case. It had been held up until a settlement of the Arabic case had been reached.

With the Arabic case disposed of the way has now been paved for sending the American note to Great Britain on interference with neutral commerce. It is expected to go forward within a few days. Its dispatch has been delayed because President Wilson did not wish to complicate the situation with that growing out of the submarine controversy.

NIRDLINGER'S NEW STORE WILL CATER TO WOMEN OF CITY

Fifth Avenue Shop Handsomely Equipped With Attractive Wear.

Another new store, which will cater to women, was opened this morning at 917 Main street, next to Steinert's piano store. It will be known as The Fifth Avenue Shop, or Nirdlinger's. The store itself has been handsomely fitted up in white and brown. The carpet and walls are of brown and the woodwork and wicker furniture of white. Mr. Nirdlinger has put in a stock of medium priced goods of excellent quality and style. Among these are afternoon and evening dresses, the former of darker tones, silks and serges and crepe metors and the latter of handsome evening shades of chifon, marquisettes, crepe metors and crepe de chine. One particularly striking evening gown is called the Anita Stewart goddess dress and it is fashioned on the lines of the gown that actress wears in her most famous film play.

A splendid line of walking skirts is also shown, among the numbers being some of the new crepe chudd cloth. The store is also carrying a number of reasonable price fur neck pieces and muffs.

Tie separate coats for winter wear are numerous and handsome and include the various heavy sport coats and handsome, beautifully lined velvet cloaks for afternoon or evening wear. The suits are many of a broad cloth and poplin trimmed with fur or heavy braids and of various styles. The prices on these range from an unbelievably low figure to one fairly high.

There are also a number of handsome blouses of Georgette crepe and lace, besides the business blouse of plainer materials. Each visitor to the store today was presented with a rosebud, and the store itself was decorated for the opening with palms and bouquets of cut flowers.

MISSING GIRL IS FOUND WANDERING ABOUT NEW YORK

Fifteen-Year-Old Helen Root Taken Into Custody By Metropolitan Policemen.

William Root, of 923 Broad street, foster father of the missing 15-year-old Helen Root, who has been missing from her home in this city for the last two weeks, left for New York city this noon in quest of the missing Helen, who was found early last evening wandering about the streets of the city in search of a position.

Helen was picked up by a policeman and taken to the Florence Crittenton home for girls at 427 West 21st street.

It was first believed by the foster parents of the young girl that she had fallen prey to a gang who hire young girls under the pretense of getting them positions with moving picture concerns.

No reason for her leaving home has yet been given with the exception that she wanted to see the big city.

CONFERENCE MAY END SCHENECTADY STRIKE

Schenectady, N. Y., Oct. 5.—Prospects for an early conference, possibly by tomorrow, between officials of the General Electric Company and representatives of their 10,000 employees who are striking for an 8-hour day, appeared bright today. State mediators from Albany awaited appointment of a conference committee by the strikers to renew their offer to act as arbitrators.

The union leaders signified their willingness to confer with their employers as soon as the union committee was organized.

We can make women's good gloves; are doing it

America can make fine gloves for women; gloves with style, gloves of soft texture; gloves with ability to fit; gloves that give the hand a graceful appearance.

Proof is ready;—a dozen or more different and handsome styles from the Bacmo factory.

Bacmo gloves are impressive combination of good quality and good style. They are cut so they fit smoothly, snugly, but with no annoying pressure. They are finely stitched, seams are firm and strong. Backs are finished with tasteful embroidery or stitching which gives a narrowed trim air to the hand. Each pair is dependable.

Bacmo gloves are, many of them, washable. When they become soiled (and they all do) a simple laundering makes them as cleanly as new. And that laundering does not affect their finish or hue at all;—they simply are made new.

Ready this very instant in sizes and sorts from special ones for little tots to heavy lined winter gloves.

Gray mocha with embroidered back, soft and unlined—$1 and $1.25.

Washable glove skin in handsome new shades—ivory oak and dark tan—$1.

Wear-Ever Aluminum actually saves money

If the actually-cheapest kitchen utensils are wanted—buy aluminum.

Their price is higher than the price of enameled and other wares. But actually they are cheapest, just the same.

It takes less fuel to heat them. They are not spoiled by being struck against the stove or other utensil. They have no seams to pull apart. If they get dented they can be put back into shape without a bit of hurt. There's no "wear out" to them.

And how things can be cooked in them! Food doesn't burn easily in Wear-ever aluminum—and if it does burn the utensil isn't spoiled.

Demonstration this week of cooking in Wear-ever ware. It's of interest for it shows the real worth of this splendid material.

Here are some Wear-ever articles that have brought pleasure into many a kitchen:—

Lipped saucepans—45c to $1.05.

Pudding pans—35c to 75c.

Tea kettles—$2.55 to $4.20.

Drill pans—$1.10 to $1.75.
